If you are not sure what trade agreements a specific country has in place, you can use the tool to find out.

Follow these steps to find the trade agreements in place or under negotiations.

Step 1 – Finding trade agreements

The tool allows to search trade agreements of specific countries; for example, if you are an exporter and what to find out what agreements your country has in force.

List of all regional trade agreements and preferential trade arrangements in the world

On this page, we present a list of 800+ regional trade agreements and preferential trade arrangements that are currently either in force, signed, under negotiation, in consultations, or terminated. We have maintained and updated this list continuously since 2005, and it is released publicly for the first time.

In order to browse agreements, select the country and whether it is the country of export or import. While this will not impact the displayed free trade agreements, it might impact unilateral arrangements (find out more about different types of trade agreements here). You can also select agreements with specific partners only.

The filters are switched on when the button appears in green. If both toggles are inactive, all agreements will be displayed.
